The Maecabees is an insurance and fraternal order and its head is Maj. N. S. Boynton of Port Huron, Mich., but whose winter home is at Boynton, Fla., near Miami. Very many of Palatka's leading business men will become charter members of the tent to be organized here.
Elmer Finch, a former Palatka boy, has been convicted of grand larceny in Jacksonville. Finch was a street car conductor. Miss Gertrude Heston, also formerly of Palatka, lost her pocketbook containing $30 in Finch's car. A gentleman picked it up and handed it to Finch. Later in the day Miss Heston asked Finch if he had found a pocketbook, and he said no. At the trial Finch admitted he got the pocketbook but said it was claimed by a man and he gave it up. The court thought he lied and convicted him.

The Palatka base ball club went to Daytona yesterday to play a game with the club at that place. The boys left with the purpose to win, but they lost by a score of 5 to 1.
Dove to His Death.
Mr. Jack Lopez of St. Louis, Mo., who will be pleasantly remembered as the friend and guest, last winter, of Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Riebel, met with a peculiar and sudden death on the 2d inst. at St. Louis.
While in bathing he dove from an elevation into the water, striking his head on a submerged rock. Mr. Lopez body never came up, but it was afterwards recovered. He was a gentleman of wealth and exemplary life and his sudden death is a sore affliction to his friends. Mr. Lopez was 34 years of age and is survived by one brother, living in St. Louis.

The sale and livery department will be well equipped with stock at all times.

There Was no Strike.
The threatened strike of the brick masons on the new Merryday block never reached to the proportions of more than a misunderstanding. The News investigation has led this paper to the conclusion that the misunderstanding is one that is personal between the contractors and one or two of their former employees and that no good could come of newspaper agitation. The News has the statements of one of the men now out and also that of the contractors. They agree in no particular. As the work is progressing satisfactorily, and those who are out profess to be satisfied as also do the contractors, there could be no good come of giving publicity to their widely divergent claims. What the public is most interested in is in seeing the work progress. And they can see that now.

"Jim Crow" at Home.
The Palatka and Heights Street Railway system has complied with the new "Jim Crow" law by supplying mosquito net partitions on all its observation cars. The white compartments are in front and those for blacks occupy the rear. Between the two is a thin wire screen.
The system is to be congratulated upon its ready compliance with the law. As a rule great railway corporations are slow to act, and when they do it is only after, and to appease, an outraged public sentiment. The black traffic on the cars of the system was never heavy, but now that the colored people have been granted a nice little screened compartment all by themselves, it is thought the business of the system among the colored people will be greatly increased. If it does not the observation cars are liable to "take a header" from too much weight in front.

In a window of Gay Bros. store is exhibited a framed "Bird's Eye View of Palatka" showing the city as it was in 1884, or before fire destroyed the downtown portion of the city.
That was in the days before railroads and when passenger steamers plied the river at all hours of day and night. It was at a time when the tourist business of the town was at its height, and when sour orange shade trees cast their shadows on Lemon street, and whose fruit the inhabitants of the town were forbidden by ordinance to pluck, it being the delight of the people to watch the Yankee tourists "sneak it."
There were lots of hotels in Palatka in those days, and the leaders were the old Putnam House and Front street.
Palatka is larger now. Has double the number of people. But there are folks still here would like a return to the "good old days."

The picture is the property of Capt. R. J. Adams, who has many relics of the olden days and who is perhaps the best informed of all our older citizens on the history of the olden Palatka. Capt. Adams came here in 1886 and from that time to this has been active in the business affairs of the city.

Commissioners vs. Petitioners.
Mr. Editor—In last week's issue of the Palatka News there was an article entitled "What is the Election?" which, perhaps, to some of your readers, does not fully explain the situation. I therefore beg leave to explain more fully and perhaps from another view point.
In the first place, the petition is circumscribed by time limitations—within sixty days after presentation.
2nd. The law contemplates immediate action. "The commissioners, upon the application of one-fourth of the registered voters, shall call and provide for an election," giving thirty days notice. A few delays and postponements will invalidate the entire plan and bring to naught all the labors of the petitioners.
3rd. In the initial steps the petition is an expedient matter, concerning the petitioners and the commissioners only. When a vote is ordered it is a county question.
The commissioners are fully qualified and competent to decide if the petition meets the requirements of law. Two weeks delay will bring no added qualifications for the discharge of their official duties, but it will take two weeks from the life of the petition and of preparation for an election.
4th. The petition is signed by about eight hundred registered voters; men of intelligence, men of character, men of property. They are representative men from all over the county. They want their constitutional rights cheerfully recognized and answered, without dilatory tactics. These latter appertain to the courts and the question of "wet or dry" has not yet been appealed to their jurisdiction.
5th. We are not afraid to trust our commissioners nor the petitioners, but we are afraid of delays that may invite our papers in endless disputes and hopeless confusion, by inviting them.

In the article to which our correspondent takes exception, the News stated the facts in the controversy. It gave both sides of the case. The News also took occasion to criticize the "ex parte" and "immediate action" demands of the attorney for the petitioners. It also gave assurance to the petitioners that the board of county commissioners, even though some of its members were opposed to the election, would act honestly by the petition, and that in promising that the petition would be canvassed within two weeks of its filing the board was acting strictly within its right and in accordance with a just and reasonable interpretation of the statute.
The News is prepared to believe, as our correspondent states, that the petition is signed by about 800 registered voters; men of intelligence, men of character, men of property; it is true of a large part of the petitioners, but it also has the word of the attorney for the petitioners "that it contains the names of many negroes who might be approached by enemies of the movement and for a moneyed consideration induced to make any sort of an affidavit," repudiating their signatures, etc.

The great body of the petitioners may not be "afraid to trust our commissioners nor the petitioners," but the paid attorney and spokesman of the petitioners did voice his distrust of the commissioners before that body, and before the editor of the News did voice his distrust of many of the petitioners.
The News would offer this bit of advice to the dry campaign committee: Have your petition signed in person by at least one-quarter of the registered voters of the county and then present it in good faith to the commissioners. Come off your high "ex parte" horse and recognize the fact that there are others in the county who have rights under the law—i. e., the three-quarters of the registered voters who have either refused or failed to sign the petition. Many of these men are opposed to spending $800 of the people's money for a "wet and dry" election. Many of them do not believe in prohibition. They have some rights, and they are going to exercise those rights by seeing that every name on the petition is a bona fide signature.
Our correspondent is not a lawyer. His statement that "his initial steps the petition is expedient matter, concerning the petitioners and commissioners only," is not the opinion of lawyers.

Over against our correspondent's statement the News places that of Judge E. E. Haskell, who, when asked for his opinion dictated the following:
"In my opinion the true intent and meaning of Section 867, Laws of Florida, as contained in the Revised Statutes, as to the presentation of an application for an election concerning sale of liquor is as follows:
"Stripped of all questions of interest and bias, the law intends that a bona fide application for such an election, accompanied by the signatures of one-fourth of the registered voters of the county, shall be received by the County Commissioners of such county, at any meeting of such board.
"That if upon investigation, TO THE SATISFACTION OF THE BOARD, said petition or application actually contains the required one-fourth of such registered voters, THEN it becomes the duty of said board to order the election.
"I am of the opinion that such a petition when presented, is a PUBLIC MATTER OF INTEREST, subject to DIRECT ATTACK on the ground of FRAUD or irregularity, TO BE DETERMINED BY THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS, under their oaths of office.
"That under the law said board must act within such a reasonable time as will allow the publication of the THIRTY DAYS NOTICE before the proposed election, so that the election may be held WITHIN SIXTY DAYS from presentation of such application to said board.
"The true spirit and meaning of this law is to INSURE to the citizens of any county, that not oftener than once in TWO YEARS, one-fourth of the registered voters of such county may upon application HAVE SUCH AN ELECTION. And in my opinion, public officers should not thwart such an application further than TO BE SATISFIED THAT THE APPLICATION ACTUALLY AND BONA FIDE contains the expressed wish of one-fourth of its citizens, for such an election."
